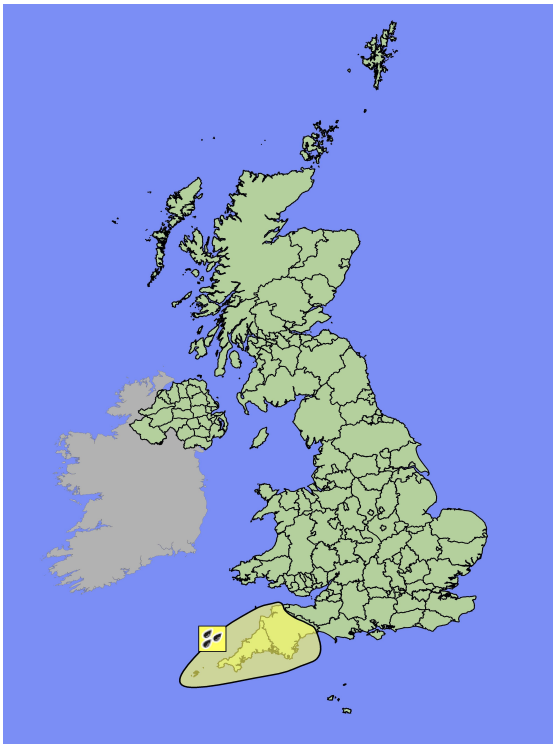
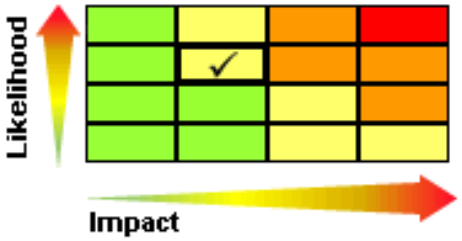
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Occasional outbreaks of rain will persist through today. Although for many places the rain will be generally light, there remains the potential for some heavy rain to occur in places. Any heavier rain is most likely over the Isles of Scilly and parts of Cornwall later this evening and early tonight. In the locations that see the heavier rain as much as 30mm could fall in a few hours.

Due to the ground being saturated after recent wet weather, any additional heavy rain may lead to localised flooding.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 11:00 on Mon, 08th Oct 2012 until 23:59 on Mon, 08th Oct 2012

Occasional spells of rain, heavy in a few places, are expected to affect more southwestern parts of England during Monday.

Following the recent wet conditions, the public should be aware of the risk of possible disruption to transport and localised flooding.
